

Leigh Freeman: Engineer/Geologist, leadership – Over the course of his eclectic 30+ year career he has served in technical, managerial and executive positions with junior and senior mining and service companies. He has extensive domestic and international experience including exploration, project development and production. He serves on the industry advisory board for the mining programs at the University of Arizona, Montana Tech, Michigan Tech, South Dakota School of Mines and Western State Colorado University. He serves on a number of committees for the Society of Mining Engineers.